Limpe Fuchs - Presstext (deutsch)

Limpe Fuchs ist eine Legende der experimentellen Musikszene. Ende der 60er Jahre trommelte die Schlagwerkerin mit ihrem Ex-Ehemann Paul Fuchs im Ensemble Anima auf selbstgebauten Instrumenten, kooperierten dabei mit Klassikpianostar Friedrich Gulda und Jazzgrößen wie Albert Mangelsdorff, um danach in neuen Konstellationen immer wieder aufhorchen zu lassen. Ihre Solo-Performance mit "variablen Holz - und Steinreihen, klingender Bronze in den Pendelsaiten, und einer Vielfalt von Fell- und Bronzetrommeln" ist eine rare Gelegenheit, einer der frühen Avantgardistinnen der bundesrepublikanischen Szene zu begegnen, die bei ihren Auftritten versucht, aus der "Resonanz des Aufführungsortes" ihre musikalischen Ideen zu entwickeln, also "Musik zu machen im Zeitfluss, mit Einfachheit und Emotion"!

Das Anima-Sound Album „Stürmischer Himmel“ entstand 1971 für das berühmte OHR-Label. Während andere Krautrockbands laute elektrische Musik zelebrierten, spielten Paul und Limpe Fuchs rein akustisch. Sie waren im Grunde das genaue Gegenteil dieser kosmischen Drogenbands. Klar, nüchtern und dennoch wild und intensiv.

play loud! productions wird in enger Zusammenarbeit mit der Künstlerin Limpe Fuchs nach und nach ihr komplettes Archiv wiederveröffentlichen. Einige Aufnahmen und Filme werden erstmalig überhaupt veröffentlicht. Und es wird viel aufregendes neues Material erscheinen. Wir möchten explizit darauf hinweisen, dass es bis zum heutigen Tag sehr viele Anima/Limpe Fuchs-Veröffentlichungen gibt, die ohne Einwilligung der Künstler entstanden sind.

Limpe Fuchs - press release (English)

Limpe Fuchs is a legend in the experimental music scene. In the late sixties, this percussionist drummed on self-made instruments, together with her then husband Paul Fuchs, in the Ensemble Anima. During that time, Limpe and Paul Fuchs cooperated with the classic pianist star Friedrich Gulda, as well as with jazz luminaries like Albert Mangelsdorff, and continually attracted the interest of their audiences in new constellations. Limpe Fuchs' solo performance with "variable wood and stone rows, ringing bronze in the pendulum strings, and a variety of skin and bronze drums" is a rare occasion to witness one of the early avant-gardists of the scene from the old Federal Republic Of Germany. She attempts, while playing live, to develop her musical ideas from the "resonance of the location where the performance takes place" - "to make music in the flow of time, with simplicity and emotion"! Her main concern is to sensitize the process of hearing: "Every tone is a sensation. Listening instead of shutting one's ears. Establishing silence."

The Anima-Sound album „Stürmischer Himmel (stormy heaven)“ was recorded in 1971 for the famous OHR label. While other Krautrock formations celebrated loud electrical music, Paul and Limpe Fuchs performed only acoustic music. At bottom they were the total opposite to these cosmic drug bands, clear, down-to-earth, wild and intense.

play loud! productions in conjunction with the artist Limpe Fuchs will release her complete archive/back catalogue. Some recordings and films will be released for the first time ever. Also there will be many exciting new recordings. We explicitly would like to point to the fact that up to this day many of the Anima/Limpe Fuchs releases have been made without the permission by the artists.

Concept behind the play loud! (live) music & word series play loud! is not only a music label or film production company. play loud!'s goal is also to preserve and archive certain moments in history.

The "play loud! (live) music series" has been initiated by filmmakers Dietmar Post & Lucía Palacios (responsible for monks – the transatlantic feedback, Reverend Billy, Klangbad, Franco's Settlers). The series parts from three ideas, Alan Lomax's work as an archivist and chronicler, John Peel's BBC radio sessions and the work of Direct Cinema pioneers, such as, Maysles Brothers, Leacock, Wildenhahn and Pennebaker. Filming live shows meant not to do it in a TV style but in a very personal, intuitive and adventurous style – nothing is staged for filming. You go along as it happens. Some of the live performances are filmed with only one camera in one continuous shot without any edits. Some critics have labeled it as "filmed paintings/painted films".

play loud!'s music films have been called: "raw", "rough", "canny", "straightforward", "adventurous", "witty", "insightful", "direct", "non-tricksy", "economic", "minimal", "unpretentious handheld camera work", "artful film paintings" ...

play loud!'s intention is to furthermore create an extensive archive of interesting popular music that includes also the possibility to screen/stream material that comes from other sources.
