TEXT

Is DJ Marcelle a masochist? She hates musicals and called her 2022 album 'DJ Marcelle: The Musical'. She dislikes cheese and calls her new album 'A Different Fridge For Cheese'.

Probably the answer has more to do with her wicked sense of humour and her love for original track and album titles. The singular producer and dj from Amsterdam lives in that rare league of artists who are out there, doing their own thing, continually pushing the boundaries of electronic music and having a great time in doing so as well.

This new album is like any Marcelle production (and dj-set): it's hard to pigeonhole. Dub, techno and avant-garde influences are clearly present but the overall feeling is one of freedom, excitement, adventure and playfulness. Ideas bounce off another and Marcelle is certainly not content with one single formula.

Each track becomes a new beginning, a new adventure. Where can we take this? What if we try that? Bristling with possibilities, structures are pushed and pulled and explode excitedly.

Album opener and closer 'Muslimgauze Was Right Part I and II' are short pieces of rhythmic noise, 'Big Room Techno Looking For A Room' is a weird and very danceable techno track and the bouncy 'Nice Feet' is not only another great dance track but also the second tribute on the lp ('Muslimgauze Was Right' the other one); this one is an ode to the best female footballer in the world, Barcelona midfielder Aitana Bonmati. 'New Equipment' describes the mood of the track perfectly. For a The Fall fan the track title 'You Don't Have To Be Weird To Be Weird' should ring a bell. Insect sounds dominate stop-start track 'To Bee Or Not To Bee'. 'A Difficult Fridge For Cheese' (nearly the title track!) is a storming avant-garde track featuring voices of some of her (musical) friends like two members of avant dub outfit Holy Tongue and fans and friends she met whilst dj-ing in amongst others Brazil and Portugal, asking in their native language to leave the cheese in the fridge, por favor.

This brings us to the album title. The title was inspired by a visit to her dj-friend and fellow The Fall-fanatic Carlos Souffront in San Francisco. Souffront, in daily life a cheesemonger, does have a different fridge for the cheese in his house. Upon seeing this, Marcelle decided to name her new lp after this.

For future album titles controversial phenomena like 'pop choirs' and 'dj schools' are warned!

After 'Explain The Food, Bitte' and 'DJ Marcelle: The Musical', 'A Different Fridge For Cheese' is Marcelle's third album being released on the Berlin label 'play loud!'.
